Some of the sisters after candidate initiation this past semester

This past fall semester has been interesting. It was my first semester in the Senior Design class, and I had a lot of group projects in addition to that class. The construction on the Science building was a burden because I would have to walk all the way around the CIS building just to get to physics lab! Hopefully the SB looks awesome when it's finished.

This past semester flew by! I was very busy with a big course load, but was lucky to spend 3 out of 5 classes with sorority sister LaMyra! We also worked together this semester as VP of recruitment and MED to assist in the development of our 3 newest sisters! It was definitely a fun semester of sisterhood.

Candidacy was a great addition to my semester. I'm thankful I have had the time to get to know the lovely ladies of Alpha Omega Epsilon and share so many laughs with them. I can't wait to spend the upcoming semester with them.

I am so happy to have met such ambitious and compassionate girls. Candidacy made me realize what I was missing out on. Learning the fundamentals about Alpha Omega Epsilon and attending events help me appreciate our sorority.

Our MED, LaMyra, with our new sisters at rock painting

This last semester I held an E-board position for the first time. It was definitely difficult juggling this responsibility with my heavy class load. However, I had my sisters to help me through it. I learned a lot and am excited for this semester. This semester is going to bring a lot and I can't wait to go through the journey making more memories with my sisters.

I felt like that this semester has not been very exciting and I did not accomplish any of my goals (personal and sorority wise). However, this semester has taught me that sometimes unpredictable situations can derail us from our goals, but having a backup plan and going with the flow can help find a new path to reach a goal. I hope 2016 will be a prosperous and successful year.

-Nina

This semester was tough but we were stronger. With many of us being upper level, we worked together to ensure the sorority and our GPAs succeeded. We pushed each other to get work done and have learned a few lessons along the way.
